THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

Dmitri TATARINOV Vallereveich,

Petitioner

v.

Superior Court of the State of California, County of San Diego;

Respondents

Civil No. 07cv2033 N(NLS))

USICE No. A72 779 308

Petitioner's Motion for Stay of Removal
During Pendency of Application for Writ of Habeas Corpus

MOTION FOR STAY OF REMOVAL

Petitioner, through counsel, hereby requests a Stay of Removal pending the Court's determination on his Application for Writ of Habeas Corpus. The Application for Writ of Habeas Corpus was filed on October 19, 2007, and this Court issued an Order to Show Cause on October 29, 2007. On November 9, 2007 an Order Granting Respondent's Motion for enlargement of time to file was granted through December 31, 2007.

Requests for stays are evaluated under the same standards employed by district courts in evaluating motions for preliminary injunctive relief. See Abbassi v. INS, 143 F.3d 513 (9th Cir. 1998). Specifically, the Petitioner must show either a probability of success on the merits and the possibility of

1 irreparable injury, or that serious legal questions are raised and the balance of hardships tips sharply in 2 petitioner's favor. Abbassi, supra. The relative hardships to the parties are the "critical element" in 3 determining when such a stay is justified. Id.

4 Factual and Legal Basis for Stay Request

5 The Petitioner, Mr. Tatarinov, came to the United States as a visitor in May of 1992. Since that 6 time, he has never left the United States. He originally applied for asylum in the United States in 7 Albany, New York, that same year.

8 In 1993, he met his wife, Patricia Lynn Jacks-Tatarinov, a U.S. citizen by birth, and they were 9 married in February of 1994. They have now been married for 13 years and live together in the 10 condominium they own. Ms. Jacks-Tatarinov has never lived outside the United States. She is a 11 Certified Public Accountant, with a Master of Science degree in Accountancy and Juris Doctorate 12 degree.

13 On January 6, 1995, Mr. Tatarinov was granted Conditional Permanent Resident Status based 14 upon his marriage. In December of 1996, he filed a petition to remove that status. That application was 15 not adjudicated until several years later, while the Respondent was in proceedings.

16 Mr. Tatarinov has lived in the United States for 15 years. For a period of three years in the 17 middle of his time here, Mr. Tatarinov shoplifted several items which resulted in three convictions. As 18 Mr. Tatarinov was not in financial need of the items, he realized he had a problem and underwent 19 extensive treatment through the help of a psychologist for his obsessive-compulsive behavior which the 20 psychiatrist believed led him to shoplift. After receiving treatment, Mr. Tatarinov has not had any 21 problems with the law since 1998.

22 The first of the three convictions for shoplifting occurred in August of 1995. Mr. Tatarinov 23 received a misdemeanor conviction for petty theft in violation of California Penal Code 484(a)/488. For 24 this he received one year of probation. In August of 1996, Mr. Tatarinov took a jacket from a 25 department store. Due to California case law which escalates shoplifting to a robbery where any force is 26

1 used with a security guard, Mr. Tatarinov was convicted of robbery in violation of California Penal 2 Code Section 211. For this Mr. Tatarinov was sentenced to 270 days of custody, imposition of which 3 was suspended and Mr. Tatarinov was granted three years probation. This conviction is the subject of 4 case number 07CV2034JAHPOR. Mr. Tatarinov's final conviction was also for shoplifting which 5 occurred in 1998; it was upgraded to a felony due to his prior theft conviction and he was charged under 6 California Penal Code Section 484/666. He was sentenced to 364 days of custody, but imposition of the 7 sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation for three years. This conviction is the subject of 8 case number 07CV2033LNLS.

9 Mr. Tatarinov was placed in removal proceedings on June 24, 1998. The Immigration Judge 10 found him removable as an alien convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude within five years of 11 admission pursuant to section 237(a)(2)(A)(i), as well as an alien convicted of two or more crimes 12 involving moral turpitude.

13 The Petitioner sought relief under section 240A(a), section 212(c), adjustment of status with a 14 waiver under section 212(h), asylum, withholding and relief under the convention against torture. The 15 Immigration Judge denied all relief requested, finding that Mr. Tatarinov was statutorily ineligible for 16 such relief due to his convictions, and ordered him deported to Russia.

17 The Board of Immigration Appeals affirmed the decision of the Immigration Judge in a two-line 18 decision with no indication that they had reviewed or considered the arguments made on appeal.

19 The Petitioner appealed to the Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit. On February 9, 2007, the 20 Court of Appeals denied his Petition for Review.

21 During the course of the immigration proceedings, however, the Petitioner also pursued a post-22 conviction nonstatutory motion to vacate the judgements entered in two of his convictions on the 23 grounds of ineffective assistance of counsel. His attorney for those criminal matters, Mr. Verhovskoy, 24 failed to file a written brief in support his criminal appeals and those appeals were dismissed. Mr.
25 Tatarinov only learned of this two years after the fact, as Mr. Verhovskoy concealed this from him. Mr.

1 Verhovskoy was subsequently suspended by the State Bar of California after disciplinary proceedings 2 were initiated against him as a matter of this ineffective assistance of counsel.

3 A post-conviction nonstatutory motion to vacate the judgements in his two convictions was filed 4 by way of a nonstatutory motion in the California Superior Court. That motion was denied and the 5 denial was appealed to the Court of Appeals and then to the California Supreme Court. After the 6 California Supreme Court dismissed the appeal, this application for writ of habeas corpus was filed.

8 Serious Legal Questions and Extreme Hardship the Petitioner Will Suffer Without This Stay

9 The accompanying application for writ of habeas corpus seeks review of a denial of a California
10 State Court nonstatutory motion seeking to vacate his convictions based upon the ineffective assistance 11 of counsel of Mr. Verhovskoy. Mr. Verhovskoy's ineffective assistance of counsel was so egregious as 12 to have violated Mr. Tatarinov's rights under the U.S. Constitution.

13 If this stay is denied, the Petitioner will likely be removed to Russia where he fears persecution.
14 Petitioner's wife has been advised that the Department of Homeland Security is actively pursuing Mr.
15 Tatarinov's removal to Russia. It should be noted that when he came to the United States, he came from 16 the former Soviet Union, a country that no longer exists. He has not returned since that time. Further, 17 he has been married for 13 years to a United States citizen who has never lived outside the U.S. and has 18 never visited Russia.

19 Additionally, Mr. Tatarinov has been diagnosed with multilevel lumbar degenerative disk 20 disease. He has been receiving treatment for this by way of a series of lumbar epidural steroid injections.
21 If he is removed to Russia, he will be unable to continue this course of treatment. His treating physician 22 has stated that without such treatments, Mr. Tatarinov faces "a significantly reduced level of activity and 23 difficulty in taking care of his own independent activities of daily living." However, with the treatment, 24 he has a "good" prognosis for a "higher level of functioning."

25 It is submitted that given the fact that upon which this application for writ is based – a denial of 26
27
28

1 Petitioner's right to counsel under the U.S. Constitution and the fact the denial of that right led to the 2 convictions upon which Mr. Tatarinov's removal order is based, present serious legal issues that have 3 not been addressed. Further, those convictions affect his eligibility for a waiver of removal based upon 4 a showing of extreme hardship to his U.S. citizen wife of 13 years tips the balance in favor of a stay 5 during the pendency of the appeal. Without a stay, Mr. Tatarinov could be removed from the United 6 States without ever having his constitutional claims heard. The hardship to his U.S. citizen wife and to 7 the Petitioner are substantial – especially given his fear of return to Russia based on harm he suffered
8 there before coming to the United States, his serious medical condition, and the separation he will face
9 from his U.S. citizen wife.

10 Declarations regarding the hardship to Mr. Tatarinov's wife, his medical condition and other 11 evidence in support of the factual claims made in this motion accompany this motion.

12 The hardship to the Respondents in this matter is minimal. These proceedings have been pending 13 in administrative proceedings and the Federal Courts for nine years. Staying the removal of the 14 Petitioner for an additional few months for this Court to decide the matter is no hardship to the 15 Respondents.

16 Based on the foregoing it is respectfully requested that this Court issue an order staying the 17 removal of the Petitioner in this matter pending a decision on the applications for writ of habeas corpus.

18 Respectfully submitted,
